Letter From Dr. Robert Hunter of New York.

LETTER NO. 7.

ON THE CURABILITY OF CONSUMPTION.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE GAZETTE:—As it is the aim of these letters to remove popular errors in regard to pulmonary diseases, I will say a few words on the curability of consumption. It is not, I think, assuming too much to say that most persons entertain grave doubts on this subject, while many are so thoroughly convinced of the impossibility of curing this disease, that they do not hesitate to characterize all medication, having that object in view, as "dishonest" and "empirical." Tubercles in the lungs are, in their opinion, equivalent to the hand of death; and the delusion is so deeply rooted and inveterate that I can hardly hope common sense, plain fact and unimpeachable testimony will prove sufficient to dispel it. Still it will not do to lose faith in the wisdom of the old Roman maxim, Magna est veritas et proevalebit.

Before I proceed to give the testimony of others, let me endeavor to make my own views clear on this point. The question is, Can consumption be cured? My answer is unequivocally Yes, even after tubercles are deposited—after they have softened and broken down the air-cells and bronchial tubes of the part in which they are deposited, forming a cavity—the lungs can still be healed, and the patient regain comfortable health. Neither the presence of tubercles, nor the actual existence of a tuberculous abscess in the lungs, precludes the patient from the hope of recovery.

Let it not, however, be inferred from what I have said, that I do not regard consumption as a most alarming disease; or that it can be cured as readily in the last as in the first stage. What I mean is, that this disease is not necessarily fatal in any stage—that patients may recover after the lungs have actually undergone partial destruction by ulceration.

How does cure take place? It sometimes takes place by absorption; that is to say, the tubercular deposit is taken up by the absorbent vessels, and expelled from the system among the excretions of the body. When the tubercular matter is in the first stage, or not far advanced in the second, cure generally takes place in this way.

Another way in which cure takes place is by the softening and expulsion of the tubercular matter, and the subsequent cicatrization of the cavity formed. When a boil breaks, its matter is discharged, and then the part heals up, leaving a scar. The parts destroyed are never reformed; but new matter is thrown out, which draws the sides of the cavity together and seals it up.

But, it may be said, the blood is always impure in consumption, and hence cure will not take place so readily in this as in other diseases. That is very true; but it will do so if the physician restores the blood to its purity by proper Inhalations. To accomplish this should be the first aim of treatment, for no cure can be expected so long as the blood remains loaded with carbonaceous impurity. Now there are no means by which the blood can be deprived of carbon, except the use of highly oxygenated Inhalations; nor any method by which we can act directly upon the lungs, except by medicating the air which the patient breathes.

There are, no doubt, to be found among medical men, some who, drawing their conclusions from the results of their own practice, still feel disposed to deny that it is possible to cure consumption. To a physician who has grown gray in practice, and yet cannot recall to recollection even one consumptive invalid among the hundreds who have sought his advice, saved through his ministrations, this scepticism is perhaps natural. But let us hear what those who have carefully investigated the matter say on the subject.

The late Dr. Swett remarks:

Another important question presents itself. Is consumption a curable disease?—and if so, what is the proportion of cases which recover? The general impression in the medical profession is, that a patient with consumption is doomed to death. * * * I have known a number of patients during the last fifteen years who have had the evidences of consumption, and sometimes in an advanced stage, who finally recovered, and are now in the enjoyment of good health. (Page 279.)

Sir James Clark, Physician to the Queen of England, says:

That pulmonary consumption admits of a cure is no longer a matter of doubt; it has been clearly demonstrated by the researches of Laennec and other modern pathologists. (Page 137.)

Prof. Carswell, the eminent pathologist, observes:

Pathological anatomy has perhaps never afforded more conclusive evidence in proof of the curability of a disease than it has in that of tubercular consumption. (Cyc. Prac. Med.)

And Laennec declares, that the cure of consumption where the lungs are not completely disorganized ought not to be looked upon as at all impossible, in reference either to the nature of the disease or of the organ affected. * * * The destruction of a part of the substance of the lungs is by no means necessarily mortal. (Page 218.)

It being then established that there is nothing in the nature of consumption to prevent its cure, the only question remaining of interest to the afflicted is, by what means this can be effected. At present Cod Liver oil and the administration of tonics and cough mixtures by the stomach constitute the chief reliance of medical men. Will those effect the cure of this disease? I answer unhesitatingly no. But lest it should be said that I am unjust to these remedial means, let us hear what other physicians of experience say on this subject.

Dr. Edward Smith, LL. D., F. R. S., physician to the Hospital for Consumption, London, in his work published only two years ago, says: "We are not agreed as to the essential nature of consumption. * * * and the disease is essentially and almost as universally a fatal one, as it has been in all ages."—p 30.

Dr. A. B. Maddock, in his work on "Diseases of the Lungs," (p.4) says: "This strange apathy has been exhibited, it must be remembered, in the treatment of those diseases declared to be incurable under the old routine practice."

Dr. John Sweet, late professor of the Institute of Medicine in the University of New York, says: "Antimony, digitalis and iodine have all had their day of imaginary success, and all have been forgotten. Cod Liver oil is destined to experience the same fate. It has not, in my opinion, any specific influence on consumption. It is good nourishment, nothing more."

Dr. MacCormac, of Belfast, a recent and most able writer on this disease, says: "All the cod fish that swim in the mighty ocean, were they converted into oil, could not relieve or avert, were it but in a single instance, consumptive tubercular decay."

And lastly, Sir James Clark, M. D. F. R. S. physician to Her Majesty, the Queen of England, says:

"The total inefficacy of all means hitherto adopted for diminishing the frequency or reducing the mortality of this class of diseases is of itself sufficient incitement to seek for some other method of remedying the evil.

These are the frank admissions of the great lights of medicine put forth in their published works. They reveal to the public the actual opinions entertained by the great body of the profession. No medical man can hope to accomplish from these means more than temporary palliation. It is because of this admitted "inefficacy" of the ordinary treatment that I advocate its abandonment, and that a fair and impartial trial should be given to the treatment through the lungs by medicines which cleanse the air-tubes and purify the blood. I know from long experience and the results obtained in thousands of cases so treated that it will arrest the progress and effect the cure of this disease where all other means have failed; and it is because I believe it to be the only means which can give those afflicted with diseases of the air passages and lungs a reasonable chance of recovery that I so strongly advocate the practice.

While the treatment by the stomach is admitted to be worthless, so far as cure is concerned, the public and the profession ought, in the language of Sir James Clark, to "seek for some other means of remedying the evil," and I know of no means which promise the same prompt benefit as the use of properly adjusted medicated and oxygenated inhalations.

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT HUNTER, M. D.

MERCHANT'S HOTEL, Pittsburgh, April 8, '67

P. S.—As Dr. Hunter is compelled to return to New York by the 1st of May this letter will conclude his series to the papers of this city. His views on the important questions discussed—questions which involve the health and lives of thousands, are now fairly before the public, and he can only hope that they may be instrumental in establishing what he believes to be a great improvement in medical practice upon a firm and enduring basis.

APPROPRIATION BILL REDUCED.

Reduction in the Western Appropriations.

SUNDRY BILLS PASSED.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

HARRISBURG, April 8, 1867.

SENATE.

Mr. Connell, chairman of the Finance Committee, offered a resolution to take out of the sinking fund the foreign insurance and license tax, amounting to $800,000, to make up the deficiency between the appropriation and the revenue, the appropriation exceeding the revenue from $700,000 to $1,000,000.

Mr. Wallace opposed the resolution on the ground that it was unconstitutional. The resolution was lost.

The Senate reconsidered the appropriation bill, going into Committee of the Whole, and reduced it five hundred thousand dollars. Among the reductions to western institutions are the following: House of Refuge, $20,000; Soldiers' Home, $15,000; Insane Asylum, $15,000.

The appropriation bill, as passed with the reduction, exceeds the revenue over two hundred thousand dollars.

HARRISBURG, April 6, 1867.

SENATE.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Act incorporating Sharon Savings Bank.

The following bills were called up and passed:

By Mr. Lowry: Act incorporating Oil Creek Lake and Transportation Company; also, the Meadville Driving Park Society. Senator Donavon, of Philadelphia, asked to have Dan Rice inserted as an additional incorporator, (laughter), which was agreed to.

Mr. Bigham: An act authorizing the Courts of Allegheny county to appoint short hand clerks.

Mr. Browne, (Lawrence): Act relating to the paving of streets in the borough of New Castle.

Mr. Lowry: Act to examine claims of the heirs of Colonel McClaine.

Mr. Searight: To authorize courts to change the place of holding elections in the Commonwealth.

DEBATE ON APPROPRIATION BILL.

The appropriation bill consumed the three sessions to-day. There was a great deal of discussion on the different items of the bill. The members' salary was reduced to $1,000. All of the appropriations to the western institutions were passed as they came from the House. The Senate did not adjourn until midnight.

A lengthy debate occurred on the appropriation to the common schools, in which Messrs. Bigham, Fisher, Morrow B. Lowry and Senators Landon and Wallace participated. A contest occurred on compelling School Superintendent Wickersham to publish his decisions in the School Journal, edited by Mr. Burroughs.

Mr. Lowry said: Mr. Speaker, we have as much right to make Mr. Wickersham publish the school decisions in Thomas H. Burrough's School Journal as you have to make me take the Erie papers, and no more.

Mr. Fisher remarked: Mr. Speaker, Thomas H. Burroughs was a friend to the common school system when these mushrooms—these upstarts were in their nurses arms.

Mr. Cowles: It is unjust—it is unwise—to compel the State Superintendent to publish his orders right along side of vile vituperation. If Mr. Burroughs must be a pensioner, if he must feed off the State, let us pension him. Since this man has left the school department, he has determined that there shall be no success—no good done. Do not foist him on the school department to enable him to destroy it. If his fame is in danger, let us erect him a monument; but if the school system is to be destroyed; let it be done by partizans, not by us here.

Mr. Burnett defended Mr. Wickersham.

Senator Brown, of Lawrence: Mr. Speaker, if it is law to rescind old laws in the General Appropriation bill, it is a new thing to me. I object to making the official organ of the school department carry with it the criticism of that department by Dr. Burroughs.

Gen. Fisher, of Lancaster, wanted to see the papers of those who abused Dr. Burroughs. He would not take the ipse dixit of any man.

Senator Brown disclaimed any personal abuse of Dr. Burroughs.

INCREASING THE SALARIES OF JUDGES.

Mr. Lowry—Why is this done?

Mr. White—Yes; that is what I would like to know.

Mr. Lowry—Why don't the Judges of Erie county get as much as the Judges in Allegheny and Philadelphia?

Mr. Donovan—Because they haven't the same ability.

Mr. Lowry—Yes; that's likely. They will have to be transplanted to Philadelphia.

Mr. White—My old district, the Tenth Judicial, contains 150,000 inhabitants, and there are only 180,000 in Allegheny, or one-third more population, and they have five more Judges, and there is but one in mine. Do something like justice, and bring up the salaries of country Judges.

Mr. Bigham—Mr. Speaker, any one of our Judges sits more days than any country Judge in the State. The Judge of this (Harrisburg) district said here the other day he had'nt enough to do; and then the cost of living is much larger in the city—there is more than $1,500 difference—and that is why we make it.

Senator White insisted that the country Judges have more to do, and should be equal.

General Fisher—We have in Lancaster thirty-four weeks of court; why should they not have the same amount of pay? It looks to me as if Philadelphia and Allegheny were going to swallow up the rest of the State. "Ye Gods, upon what meat doth this our Cæsar feed that he has grown so fat."

The yeas and nays were required, and resulted 15 to 12. So it was determined on paying the city Judges $5,000; all others $3,500.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Act to change the venue in the case of the Johnstown sufferers from Cambria to Centre county.

Act leasing the Kersey Oil and Mineral Company Railroad to the Farmers' Railroad Company of Venango county.

Act to incorporate the Oil Storage and Improvement Company.

Joint resolution requiring the State Treasurer, Auditor General and secretary of the Commonwealth, to collate, revise and digest the laws of the Commonwealth.

The following bills were passed:

An act relating to footwalks in Oakland township; also to authorize the School Directors of Oakland to borrow money for school purposes; also supplement to the act incorporating the Pittsburgh and Minersville Passenger Railroad; also act to provide for the payment of the cost of removing paupers in certain cases in this Commonwealth.

Mr. McKee read in place and had passed an act to incorporate the Ridge Valley Cooperative Association of Allegheny.

Mr. Chase called up and had passed an act to secure uniformity in the guage in the purchase and sale of crude petroleum. This act authorizes the Governor to appoint suitable persons to inspect crude oil in the counties of Venango, Crawford and Warren, the fees of the inspectors to be one dollar and fifty cents for cars containing one or more tanks, and two cents per barrel for tanks containing less than five hundred barrels, and one cent for vessels containing more than five hundred barrels.

Mr. Boyle called up an act to commute the death sentence.

Mr. Linton offered an amendment that the act should apply to convictions prior to the passage of the act.

The amendment was lost, and the bill passed finally.

Evening Session.—The cattle bill being before the House, Mr. Boyle raised the point of order that the bill contained two different subjects, and was therefore unconstitutional. The Chair ruled the point of order not well taken. Mr. Boyle appealed from the decision of the Chair, and upon the question shall the Chair be sustained the vote was 33 yeas to 22 nays. Upon the final passage of the bill the yeas were 39 and nays 30, so the bill failed. The reason for the small vote on this question was that a great many members had paired off on this question. The vote was reconsidered and the bill passed, finally.

The genuine Free Railroad Law passed without a division.

The Supreme Court of the United States had before it to-day the case of Josefa De Harro et al, appellants, vs. the United States, appellee. The case is an appeal from the United States District Court of California, which rejected the claim. The title of the land in question, in or near San Francisco, involves from three to fifteen millions of dollars. The United States maintain the claimants have no title in the chart, and finally, that their claims are entirely destitute of equity and should be rejected.

THE RUSSIAN TREATY—ITS RATIFICATION RECOMMENDED.

It is understood that Mr. Sumner made a speech in its favor, when the subject was passed over until to-morrow, when the Senate will meet at eleven o'clock and afford ample opportunity for discussion, so that a vote may be reached before adjournment. Some say there is a prospect that the treaty will be ratified by a two-thirds vote. Prompt action is induced by the fact that the treaty, according to report, allows only three months for definite action.

FROM THE WEST.

Intelligence Concerning the Indians—Confederation Against the Whites—War of Extermination—Death in Battle Rather than by Starvation—Remarkable Meteor.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, April 8.—The Democrat's St. Joseph special says: The Montana Post of the 14th gives the following information in regard to the Indians: Eighteen hundred lodges of Sioux, numbering three warriors to a lodge, under chiefs Red Cloud, Iron Plate and White Young Bull, are encamped on the Big Horn river, about thirty-five miles from Fort Smith. The Crows, Bloods, Pequins, Grosentres and Sioux have made peace among themselves and joined in a league against the whites.

About eight hundred lodges are yet north of the Missouri River, but will cross over and camp near Muscle Shell River as soon as the spring opens, and after concentrating their forces the confederation will wage a war of extermination against the whites. They say the whites have occupied their only hunting ground; that death is inevitable and they prefer it in battle rather than by starvation.

The Commandant at St. Smith don't expect to be able to hold his position, and it is thought if reinforcements don't arrive soon, the command will come to Clarke's Fort, on the Yellow Stone.

He returned the property, paid the costs and was allowed to go at liberty, the owner of the vehicle refusing to prosecute.

Ristori.

The event of the season has transpired. All snobdom has been on the very tip-toe of anxious expectancy to behold Ristori, and not only her, but the resplendant costumes of their fashionable friends. They have been appeased. The Opera House was made glad last night by her presence, and the regalia of hundreds of our bon tons, whose outfits made terrible vacancies in the exchequers of indulgent papas, to say nothing of the magnificent personnelles of our young men of fashion. A close observer could have noticed something unusual in the stir and bustle in our streets during the entire day. Diamond Alley, that contracted haven of millinery and unique ideas, was in one tumult. Bonnets of the latest style were in fearful demand, while old frames were being trimmed anew, some with a coiffure of honiton, another with a spray of French flowers, while still another was composed of a few fig leaves stuck together, after the manner of our primitive parents, with a few thorns that were dignified by the title of darts. Opera cloaks were cleaned, and where time had left an indelible stain new ones were substituted. Smythe on a salary of six hundred a year, purchased immaculate kids, and engaged a carriage at half a month's income. Poor Smythe, it will be six months ere his purse will permit of another visit to the theatre. But what of that. Did he not see Ristori. Had he not the pleasure of ogling the fascinating Miss P. through his borrowed lorgnette. Was he not for three long hours surrounded by rustling silks crisp, laces, paste jewels and rounded busts that owed their grace to the mantua maker's art. Would not that requite him sufficiently for time and expenditure. He must be a very unreasonable elf else. But a truce to this idle gossip, and to the more serious business of speaking of the actress and the play. The historic play "Elizabeth" with Ristori in the title role is not a spectacle to be witnessed every day, and those who attended the Opera House last night could not fail to have been impressed with what they saw, as never before on these boards has such powerful acting been done. As we said in a former issue, Ristori is not a beautiful woman now, whatever she may have been in the past. The contour of her face is not perfect, according to the rigid standard of feminine loveliness, the chin being broad, the mouth flat and wanting in symmetry, while at times she lacks dignity. This is noticeable especially in her exits, when she seems to forget, for the nonce, that she is a sovereign, casting aside, as it were, the imperiousness of Elizabeth, as soon as the last line of her speech is ended. Save this fault, we failed to discover another blemish throughout the entire length of the play. The author has sacrificed plot to history, and we are well satisfied that he did so, for in the picture Ristori gives us of the Virgin Queen we recognized a perfect likeness to that the historian had created in our mind. A woman whose ambition and love of power was her god, on whose unholy alter was sacrificed her friends, her mercy, and that crowning beauty of a woman's life—her love. Her egotism was equal to everything, grasping now at the warrior's sword, now at the ermine of the legislature, and anon craving the poet's bay, setting up in her arrogance a rivalry with the author of the "Fairy Queen." Seeking to be the mistress of the world, she was only mistress of a score of great men who stooped to sooth her with fulsome flattery that they might, on their false utterance, climb to power. Fearing to share her throne she led a sterile life of celibacy, dying at length amid the half concealed joy of those who had been raised through her to position and importance.

This was the real character of the Queen, and this Ristori held up to her auditors with all the force of her giant-like genius, making us forget for a time that she was not the artiste but the sovereign. Her reception of Essex, in scene V, act IV, was a magnificent piece of acting. Rebuking the man she loved but to show her power over him and satisfy her woman's whim, she was not prepared for the violent denunciation that he hurled at her, surrounded by her nobility, in whose eyes, for the first time, she felt humbled. Her eyes flashed the fire that was in her soul; her veins swelled with the rush of angry blood, and in that moment she undone herself by ordering his arrest.

Signor Glech, who sustained the character of the favorite, was particularly good in this scene, sharing for a moment the applause with Ristori. The latter in making up her face for the concluding act, misconceived the distance of the auditorium from the stage and overdone it a trifle; her face, instead of presenting an emaciated presented a very dirty appearance to the majority of the audience.

To-night she appears in the great character of, "Marie Stuart," and on the succeeding evening as Lady Macbeth, in Shakespere's tradgey of "Macbeth.

Seats for the last night can be procured at once, by applying at the box office.

New Store, New Firm, New Goods.

Elsewhere in to-day's paper appears the card of a new firm—Messrs. Gourley & Logan, who have opened a first class retail hat and cap establishment, at No. 56 St. Clair street. The members comprising the new firm, H. J. Gourley and J. M. Logan, are both well and favorably known to the community, and we hope they will meet with the success they merit. A large stock of men and boys hats and caps, purchased from the most careful and experienced importing houses of the East, has just been received, and will be found to embrace all the latest and most fashionable styles. It is generally conceded that without a tasty and becoming covering for the head, man is never dressed and cannot appear to advantage, and any of our readers who disregard this fact, while such rare chances for selection are offered at Gourley & Logan's new store, should be publicly read out of fashionable society. We bespeak for the new store a large patronage as the stock will ever be kept up to the standard of the times, while the prices will be as reasonable as those prevailing at cotemporary establishments. The firm has our heartiest wishes for success, and we commend its members to our readers as fair dealing, honorable and enterprising business gentlemen. Give them a call for any article in the hat, cap or straw goods line.

Ungallant.

Anthony Blackshorp was before Alderman Mullin, yesterday, charged, on oath of Philip Meyerbeer, with assault and battery. The defendant alleges that Blackshorp attacked Mrs. Meyerbeer on the public street, knocking her down and abusing her in an outrageous manner. The lady is said to have called for help, and begged her assailant to desist, but all her petitions were unheeded until the arrival of a neighbor, who relieved her by knocking Blackshorp down. The latter, on being taken before a magistrate, stated in defence that the woman had called him some very harsh names, applying epithets that had a tendency to cast a blemish on his parentage. This, no matter how aggravating to a sensitive man, such as Anthony evidently is, was not considered sufficient to warrant the desperate attack on the female, and the defendant was required to furnish bail in the sum of five hundred dollars to answer at Court.

Popular Scientific Lectures.

The Young Men's Christian Association has already made itself in our midst a power of good. It is, in all respects, a benevolent institution. Though still in its infancy it has already opened free reading rooms, and has secured a few popular lecturers for this spring, proposing to have a regular course next fall and winter. The object of lectures is popular entertainment and instruction. This will be free to all members of the Association. The first two will be delivered on Thursday and Friday evenings, at Masonic Hall, by Prof. Brewer, of Yale College, one of the leading scientific men in the country. His lectures will be illustrated. Admission to those not members of the Association, fifty cents. The Young Men's Christian Association has incurred a great expense in furnishing these lecturers and we hope our citizens will attend them for their own benefit and to help lighten the expenses of the Association.

Runaway.—A pair of spirited horses belonging to William Mackey, and attached to a light buck wagon, took fright yesterday afternoon and dashed down St. Clair street at a terrible rate of speed. A lad on the street caught the reins and heroically held on to the frightened horses until he was thrown under the wagon. The wheels passed over him, but he escaped without a bruise of any consequence. The horses finally brought up below Penn street after colliding with an express wagon, thus disengaging themselves from the vehicle, the shafts of which were broken into flinders. The owner of the spirited horses should feel very happy that no more serious consequences attended the result of his carelessness, in leaving his team unhitched.

The Iron City Monthly will be ready this week. Price sixty cents per copy. Look for it.

Base Ball.

Although the spring has somewhat advanced there has been no general movement among the votaries of our National game—Base Ball—as yet. The Atlantic Club, of Brooklyn, acknowledged on all sides to be the most perfect association of the kind in the country, are about purchasing new grounds, which are calculated to surpass, when all the arrangements are complete, any club grounds in the world. The Athletics, of Philadelphia, have not done anything yet, and from present appearances the old enthusiasm of this organization has been dangerously marred by the defeats it sustained last year at the hands of the Atlantic. It has, however, the material to win a brilliant record, as it embraces in its ranks some of the finest athletes in the United States, and this assurance may spur them to renewed exertions. In this vicinity, lovers of the bat and ball are very numerous, and we have quite a number of base ball clubs more or less proficient in the healthful exercise. Among them the Enterprise Club, of Allegheny, stand prominent, having won every contest they ever engaged in with a local organization hereabouts. Determined on maintaining their prestige, they have entered the field in advance of their cotemporaries, having within the last few days erected their colors on the West Common, Allegheny, and yesterday were engaged in a test game among themselves. The day was bland and beautiful, the sunlight shining warmly on the young grass that in its emerald freshness looked like a huge table where lovers of pastoral scenes might play rouge et noir at will. The ruddy glow in the face of each player showed that the blood was coursing free through every vein, bringing more benefit to the participant than a whole cabinet of allopathic drugs or homeopathic doses. The Enterprise boys intend making an extensive Western tour early in May, when they will play match games with several of the Vesperian clubs.

The Lincoln club, although not so active as their neighbors, are not totally inert, as they purpose entering the field at an early day to make a vigorous campaign for the palm of superiority. They will meet on Saturday next to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Now that the ball is fairly opened, let it be kept moving.

Auscultation and Dr. Keyser's Lung Sound.

When LAENNEC, who was the first to introduce to the medical profession auscultation as a means of determining the exact state of the lungs by listening to the respiration, he met with but little favor. The novelty of his invention excited not a little attention, and it being so different from that mode of examination which had existed since the commencement of the Christian era, up to his time, 1816, it was denounced as quackery, and unworthy the dignity of the profession. It is needless, however, to observe that at the present day, Laennec's mode of examining the lungs is, in some form or other, resorted to by nearly all medical men who make any pretensions toward the cure of lung disease in any of its manifold varieties. It is not meet then that the human mind should exert itself in its devotion to that science whose function it is to ameliorate the condition of the human race, especially with regard to a disease which annually sweeps its untold millions to untimely graves? Our answer is a plain one. It is. And he, whoever he may be, who adds but a little to the accumulated lore of ages, is entitled to the meed of praise from which none but a bigot, who desires to stand still, will demur. We desire to invite attention more especially to a new instrument, called "LUNG SOUND," partly the invention of Dr. Keyser, of this city, which, he claims, acts to the ear, as the microscope does to the eye, and renders the normal and abnormal sounds, in respiring, as plain to the ear as though the walls of the chest were made of glass instead of opake flesh and flood.

An Ornament.

The intersection of Fifth and Smithfield streets has of late been the scene of a large gathering and much hilarity—men of brawny limbs congregate there for the purpose of testing their strength, while indative individuals divest themselves of their superfluous wealth endeavoring to elevate a tin vessel. Business is evidently on the increase, for the number of instruments have recently augmented from one to four, and the locality once unattractive now incites the curiosity of every passer by. The legitimate offspring of the enterprise is a queer little fellow, the very counterpart of Daniel Quilp, Esq., who sits from morn until the shades of night have long fallen, gazing intently on the object of his maintenance. To the interrogations of his customers he neither acquiesces nor demurs, but in a mechanical voice calls out the extent of their muscular powers. A case of Mrs. Jarley's wax figures and the musical strains of a new hand organ would enhance the collection considerably.

Police Dismissed.

Thomas Smith, George Cochran and Edward Owens, members of the Mayor's police, got drunk on Saturday night, March 30th, and on the following Sunday morning about two o'clock forced an entrance into the house of Mrs. Crissila Moore, on Washington street, and deported themselves in an outrageous manner. Mrs. Moore called the watchman doing duty on that beat, whereupon the drunken policemen vanished. They were subsequently arrested and fully identified as the party who had perpetrated the outrage. Last night they had a hearing before Mayor McCarthy, who sentenced each of them to pay a fine of $20 and then dismissed them from the service of the city. They only received that which their deserts merited, and we trust it will prove an example to all who indulge their appetites to the same extent, when on duty as guardians of the peace of our city.

Patent Window Sash.

We yesterday had the pleasure of closely examining a model of what we concieve to be a great invention, and one which will be generally introduced by house-builders. It was the patent window sash now on exhibition by Mr. Joe. Washington, at room six, second floor of No. 67 Fourth street. The sash, by the simplest of means, is removed from the window, so that the vexatious trouble of getting at the glass now experienced by house-keepers in cleaning, is entirely obviated. It is so simply constructed, and has so many advantages over all other sashes now in common use, that we do not wonder at its very general adoption. Mr. Washington is selling patent rights and territory for the sash, and carpenters, sash-makers, and house-builders should at once call and look into its merits.

The Sculling Match.

Walter Brown, an aspirant for the aquatic championship of America, and now matched with James Hamill for a contest on the 21st day of May, is in full training for the eventful struggle at his home, in Portland. Mr. Brown is expected to arrive in this city about the latter part of this month, and during his stay he and his partisans will be the guests of the McKee Barge Club, whose boat house, at present, is situated above Dam No. 1, but will be more conveniently located after his arrival.

Malicious Mischief.

John C. Thomas appeared before Alderman Lynch yesterday, and instituted legal proceedings against Amanda McMurtrie or malicious mischief. The prosecutor alleged that Amanda wantonly and maliciously distroyed a pair of pants belonging to the former. The lady, on being arrested, stated that Thomas had boarded with her for a considerable time and left without settling his bill. The prosecutor failing to show malice, Amanda was discharged and Thomas mulct in the cost.

Addresses will be delivered by Rev. John B. Clark, D. D., and Rev. S. F. Scovil. This announcement should be sufficient to attract a large audience, as the speakers are immensely popular in the walks of oratory.

Caught in the Act.—A lad named Robert S. McAdams, was arrested at the Allegheny wharf, yesterday, in the act stealing a piece of a rope, from a flat boat lying near the Hand street bridge. He was taken to the Mayor's office in Allegheny, where he had a partial hearing, and was admitted to bail for a further hearing on Wednesday.

The Pittsburgh Gazette

TUESDAY, APRIL 9, 1867.

CONSOLIDATION.

A law having been passed by the Legislature looking to the consolidation of Pittsburgh, Allegheny, and the adjacent municipalities, we to-day present to such of our readers as are directly interested in the project a lithographic diagram, showing the existing boundaries and those contemplated. The Consolidation, however, is not absolute and unconditional, but is contingent on the results of a popular election to be held simultaneously with the annual State election next October. Each incorporate district is not empowered to decide the question for itself. Not yet is the decision to be made by a majority of the whole voting population resident within the prescribed limits. Virtually three districts are constituted, and the municipalities included in each will either go in or stay out together. The first of these districts embraces all on the right bank of the Allegheny, and extending somewhat down the same side of the Ohio. The second includes all on the left bank of the Monongahela, and running down the left side of the Ohio far enough to take in Temperanceville. The third comprises all between the two rivers. A majority of the voters in each district will decide the matter so far as it is concerned.

Doubt has been expressed as to the right of the Legislature to refer questions of this sort back to the people for determination. It is urged that the law-making power is not transferable; that when an act is made contingent on a popular vote, the men voting make the law, which is not admissible under the Constitution; that members of the Legislature, who are simply Deputies of the People, cannot appoint Deputies, few or many, to do their work for them. The promoters of consolidation say they have considered this point and find nothing in it that militates against the submission of the question to the people, in manner and form as prescribed. They are confident certain decisions of the Supreme Court, to which reference has been made, are not applicable to this case. If they are mistaken more will be heard on this head before a final solution shall be reached.

This matter of consolidation merits a full and dispassionate consideration. Old rivalries, alienations, conveniences, ambitions or habits ought to be pushed aside, and a judgment matured from facts as they now exist. It is easy to see how the various municipalities came into existence. Geographical conditions had much to do with their development. No doubt their multiplication served a good purpose. As the case stands now they are rather hindrances than helps. Consolidation has become, if not a necessity, at least a means to farther progress. With so large a population as is now congregated in this vicinity—constituting one community by proximity, business interests, ecclesiastical association and social intercourse—there are inconveniences and evils in diverse municipal administrations. In respect of Schools, Poor Relief, Water, Gas, Streets, Bridges, Fire Engines, and Police, there are manifest incongruities and annoyances arising from eight or ten different governments. Hereafter we may find time profitable to amplify on each of these heads. For the present we can do no more than barely mention them. With the augmentation of population the evils referred to, instead of diminishing, will increase, and press sorer from year to year.

There are other considerations which flow more from the feelings than from interest. In these corporations there is an identity that makes all the populations one community. In reality there is but one town here—not eight or ten. Sympathies, friendships, interests, and mutual dependencies, interlace and bind us together in all possible directions. So long as various organizations exist we are subject to constant belittling and disparagement. Look into the census tables, the returns of domestic production and internal revenue, the reports of elections, the lists of eleemosynary, Christian and patriotic contributions, and all other statements by which people at a distance compute approximately or comparatively the size of a place and the character of a people. What need is there for perpetual explanation! There is no possible escape for this annoyance but in consolidation.

THE MISSISSIPPI SUIT.

On Friday the Supreme Court will hear what the lawyers employed by Mississippi have to urge in favor of making the United States responsible in a Chancery suit, and stopping the Executive and Legislative functions thereof until the suit shall be decided. Judging from the manner in which some of the democratic journals discourse, it would seem they believe all Departments of the Government are directly amenable in all matters to the ten men who occupy places on the Supreme Bench, and that whatever any six of them see fit to concur in must be the unalterable rule of action. This view has no foundation either in the theory or working of the Constitution.

This point was brought under consideration by Mr. THOMAS JEFFERSON, and in a letter dated June 11, 1815, and addressed to Mr. W. H. TORRANCE, he thus states his judgment:

"The second question, whether the judges are invested with exclusive authority to decide on the constitutionality of a law, has been heretofore a subject of consideration with me in the exercise of official duties. Certainly there is not a word in the Constitution which has given that power to them more than to the executive or legislative branches. Questions of property, of character, and of crime, being referred to the judges through a definite course of legal proceedings, laws involving such questions belong, of course, to them; and as they decide on them ultimately and without appeal, they of course decide for themselves. The constitutional validity of the law or laws again prescribing executive action, and to be administered by that branch ultimately and without appeal, the executive must decide for themselves, also, whether under the Constitution they are valid or not. So, also, as to laws governing the proceedings of the Legislature. That body must judge for itself the constitutionality of the law, and equally without appeal or control from its co-ordinate branches."

In the Rhode Island case, substantially the same point was brought for determination before the Supreme Court, and Chief Justice TANEY delivered this opinion:

"Under this article of the Constitution it rests with Congress to decide what Government is the established one in a State. For as the United States guarantees to each one a republican government, Congress must necessarily decide what Government is established in the State before it can decide whether it is republican or not. And when the Senators and Representatives of a State are admitted into the councils of the Union, the authority of the Government under which they are appointed, as well as its constitutional character, is recognized by the proper constitutional authority. And its decision is binding on every other department of the Government, and could not be questioned in a judicial tribunal. It is true that the contest in this case did not last long enough to bring the matter to this issue; and as no Senators or Representatives were elected under the Government of which Mr. Dorr was the head, Congress was not called upon to decide the controversy. And yet the right to decide is placed there and not in the court."

It is not conceivable the Supreme Court will in the present instance abandon the line of safe precedents. If it should, however, no change will take place in the course of Congress, and probably none in the action of the President. Full warrant for disregarding the Supreme Court, in an emergency of the sort contemplated, is found in the conduct of President JACKSON relative to the mandamus issued by Chief Justice MARSHALL in the Cherokee case. The President simply failed to obey, and the order of Court remained inoperative. If that lesson was not sufficient to teach the Judges they do not constitute the government, a repetition thereof, might be advantageous.

—A new and strange case of infidelity to nuptial vows has just come to light in Chicago. The wife of a wealthy retired New York merchant, with his consent, started for New Orleans winter before last, and last winter, to pass the cold season there, with her parents, and return to New York in the spring. Last spring she returned according to the previous arrangement; but last February the husband went unexpectedly to New Orleans, and found his wife had not been there, either that winter or the previous one. He also ascertained that she had passed the previous winter with a lover in St. Louis, and the present one with him in Chicago. He went to the latter place after her, but she heard of it, and eluded his pursuit. Her strategy was to send letters to New Orleans, where they were post-marked and forwarded to him. He sent her money, upon which she and her lover lived. Failing to find his erring spouse, the husband returned to New York. The woman and her paramour are still in Chicago. The husband is about fifty years of age; the wife twenty-two.

—An intelligent London correspondent of the New York Herald, writing on the 6th of March, says:

"I am inclined to think if we get things settled in America, and arrange our differences with England before the end of this year, that the next European mania for speculation must turn to the United States, very likely to the purchase of Southern lands and grand plans for emigration. In another year something must be done with the vast accumulation of money now lying idle here and on the Continent. The United States is in high favor. If we have no serious mishap this will increase. The lavish expenditure of Americans in Paris and elsewhere, backed as it is in most cases by unquestioned and rapidly acquired wealth is making a serious impression upon Europeans."

—Gov. Patton, of Alabama, in a recent letter to Lieut. Gov. Voorhies, of Louisiana, speaks very sensibly with reference to the Reconstruction Law, as follows:

"I am clearly of the opinion that an appeal to the Courts would accomplish no good. If a test case were brought before the judiciary, it would open up a series of the most complicated questions which, perhaps, ever engaged the attention of any tribunal. Questions of such vast magnitude could not speedily be disposed of. They would necessarily require much time; and before a conclusion could be reached the Southern States, in all probability, would be fully re-organized under the Congressional plan."

—In reference to the late Republican meeting in Montgomery (Ala.) that strong Southern organ, the Montgomery Advertiser, says:

"That the meeting was a large one, composed of both white and colored citizens, with perhaps a preponderance of the latter, but a very considerable and respectable portion of the former, no fair man will deny; that the resolutions deal with facts rather than theories, to which we will assent, is incontrovertible; and that the speeches were good, bad or indifferent, such as we might expect to hear at a political meeting of this character, all will admit."

—No less a person than Caleb Cushing is the eulogist of Charles Sumner. In his published argument on the Meade case, Mr. Pierce's Attorney General begs leave to read from a recent report of the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations: "Not only because of the eminent ability displayed in the report itself, and of the all comprehensive knowledge of public law possessed by Mr. Sumner, and his great experience in public affairs, but because of the force and truth with which he enunciated the doctrines I shall propose to prove by citations from law books."

—The New York Commissioners of Immigration report that during March 47 emigrant vessels arrived at that port, carrying 13,029 passengers. The total number of immigrants that have arrived from January 1st to April 6th, has been 26,181, as compared with 31,199 during the same period of 1866. Of the arrivals in March, 6,147 settled in New York, 1402 in Pennsylvania, 962 in Illinois, 734 in Ohio, 547 in Massachusetts, and the others are scattered all over the Union, one going to Utah and one to Idaho.

—A New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger writes as follows:

"Thurlow Weed's mission in taking hold of the Commercial Advertiser begins to be developed. It is to lead off in the formation, if possible, of a great Conservative party, steering clear of Radical Republicans on the one hand, and Copperhead Democracy on the other, with a view of bringing out General Grant and Admiral Farragut for President and Vice President. This purpose will unveil itself very specifically, I understand, in the course of a few days.

—In Gen. Beauregard's letter on reconstruction, which we printed a day or two ago, he says: "With regard to the suffrage of the freedmen, however objectionable it may be at present, it is an element of strength for the future; if properly handled and directed, we shall defeat our adversaries with their own weapon. The negro is Southern born. With a little education and some property qualifications, he can be made to take sufficient interest in the affairs and prosperity of the South to insure an intelligent vote."

—The Washington correspondent of the Charleston Daily News says there is a quarrel between the President and Secretary of War, and fortifies his assertion by stating that Stanton appealed to the Senate to remain in session. The News' correspondent states: "Stanton discovers that notwithstanding the potency of the Tenure of Office Bill, that act does not prevent the Executive from removing a member of the Cabinet, not appointed by him, and hence his alarm."

—The Tennessee Conservatives are making the most tremendous bids for the negro vote, and the rebel organs at Nashville far out-do the radicals in "nigger worshipping." We find in the Nashville Union this appeal:—"Let us fling our whole souls into it. Take the negro into your convention. Give him a place by your side. Aye, make him a Vice President, let him sit side by side with your first officer, in token of eternal reconciliation and fraternity."

—A secret detective of the Government has recently arrested thirty-eight persons who are charged with buying and selling counterfeit currency and treasury notes. The numerous prosecutions for similar offences have been so frequently followed by a speedy pardon, that the President has heretofore more than neutralized the vigilance and activity of the detectives.

A Story of Fallen Stars.

Few persons acquainted with the orbits, sometimes dubious and eccentric, of theatrical luminaries, but have recollections or have seen Mrs. Frank Drew, formerly a bright particular star in the profession. She was for some years lessee of the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, one of the most reputable places of amusement in the country, and herself, possessed of extraordinary talents as an actress, nightly played to refined and delighted audiences in the city of brotherly love. Her life was a perfect ovation, and pecuniary success crowned her talent to such an extent that four years ago she was reputed to be worth in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million. She had a daughter, a beautiful child, then about fourteen years of age, who electrified beholders with her grace and skill as a danseuse. The daily life of mother and daughter was one of luxury, extravagance, gaiety and excitement.

But behind and beneath all this apparent success and happiness there was a secret which palled the cup of pleasure. The mother was a victim to the appetite for strong drink. The intoxication of popular applause, the garish glare of the footlights, the enraptured attention accorded to every step, every gesture, was not enough, and Mrs. Drew drank deeply of the cup which was soon to ruin her and her daughter—ruin them body and soul.

Facilis est descensus Averni, and rapidly the wretched woman trod the downward path. Soon so wedded was she to her besotted appetite that she could no longer retain her hold on public favor. As she descended she sank from public view, and the ever fickle populace turned from contemplation of the fallen to hail the rising star.

But the saddest feature of this sad tale is the fact that the miserable mother, in her fall, drew down with her her young daughter, and forced her to drink to the full of the cup of wretchedness and shame.

Now, at the time we write, the mother and daughter are playing an engagement, so-called, at a miserable varieties concert room which the citizens of our neighboring city of Jackson allow to pollute their midst. Here, surrounded by the dregs of society, themselves no better than the worst about them, these two eke out a miserable subsistence. Bloated by intemperance, dissipation and licentiousness, for the crime of drunkenness rarely goes alone, and disfigured almost beyond recognition, it seems as though liquor had done its worst with this wretched couple; that from the topmost round of the ladder of professional fame these two, who so lately delighted audiences of the best society, had fallen to the uttermost depths of degradation. But if there is a lower depth than this, as surely they will find it. In the ruin which liquor brings there is no half-way stopping place.—Adrian (Mich.) Expositor.

A Child Strangled by its Father.

We learned yesterday the particulars of a most revolting act of infernal cruelty, perpetrated at Sankyville, in Warren county, by a father upon his own child—an act which a devil would blush to commit. The man's name is Reeves, and the act was committed on the cold Tuesday night which everybody remembers with a shudder. The man has been married for eighteen or twenty months, and the little one which he strangled to death was only four or five months old. He had always positively refused to permit the child to be taken into the bed with him and his wife, but compelled her to put it in a cradle by the bedside. On the cold night referred to, the little one kept up a constant crying, and its mother insisted and finally did take it in the bed with her. The next morning the child was found to be dead, and it was at first thought that it had been smothered to death; but suspicion finally deepened into a belief that it met its fate at the hands of its demoniac parent; and a coroner's inquest being held, the jury returned a verdict "that the child came to its death by strangulation." The throat of the little one showed in death the terrible finger-prints of the unfeeling hand that crushed its young life out. The man was arrested and taken to Indianola for examination, but we understand the trial was postponed for a week or two to allow him to prepare himself, or procure witnesses, or on some other pretext.—Des Moines (Iowa) Register.

HEAR REASON!
STRENGTHEN THE DEFENSES.

When a garrison apprehends an attack from an outside enemy, what does it do? It STRENGTHENS THE DEFENCES. The human system, at this season of the year, is beleaguered by morbid influences. The atmosphere is full of them. Every change of weather lays the feeble open to their attacks. What is to be done in order to baffle these unseen, but ever active, foes? STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES. Do you ask how? The answer is simply—the means within the reach of all: Reinforce the vital organs and the nervous system with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. Tone the stomach, regulate the bowels, rouse the sluggish liver, cheer the spirits, enrich and purify the vital current, with HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. That's the way to STRENGTHEN THE DEFENCES, and render the capital of health impregnable. If you wish to escape bilious head-ache, intermittent fever, indigestion, and nervous visitations—to enjoy, in all its plentitude, the blessing of "a sound mind in a sound body," use this incomparable preventive and restorative. It preserves health in the healthy, and renews it in the weak and ailing.

PINUS ABIES, OR CANADA PINE.

There exudes from the inside bark of the White Pine, which grows abundantly in all the Eastern States and Canada a honey-like, sweet substance, highly imbued with this terebinthinate principle which has long been valued as a remedy, in various diseases of the human body, especially those of the mucous tissues. Dr. G. W. Sweet, of Boston, has compounded from this material a medicine called POLAND'S WHITE PINE COMPOUND; which has met with great favor in those maladies where the turpentines and balsams are supposed to be valuable.

For Gravelly Affections.
Diabetes in young or middle aged people.
Diabetes in old people.
Stoppage of the urine.
The same difficulty in children during the night.
Gravel, Kidney Trouble in old people.
Ulcerated Kidneys, Ulcerated Bladder.
Discharge of mucus, or pus, or blood from the bladder.
Bright's Disease of the Kidneys.
Pain in the Kidneys or small of the back.
Pain in the bladder, Heat and Scalding, &c.

Poland's White Pine Compound will be found speedy and permanent cure. It is no less to be valued as a general and bracing constitutional tonic, which imparts its health-giving principles to all the tissues of the body, without sickening or weakening the system in any way, or disturbing any one in his usual avocations.

PROPOSALS FOR IRON WORK.

Sealed Proposals will be received at this office until 1 o'clock on FRIDAY, the 31st day of May, 1867, for the necessary iron work for an iron coffer-dam for Waugoshance Light-house, Straits of Mackinaw, Michigan. Plans and specifications for this work can be obtained on application to this office, or to Gen. W. S. Smith, superintending Engineer at Oak Park, Cook county, Illinois.

This iron work will be required to be delivered on or before the 10th of June, 1867, on board of a vessel either at Buffalo, N. Y., Cleveland, O., Detroit, Michigan, or Chicago, Ill., at the option of the bidder, but the place of delivery must be stated in the bid.

The iron work will amount to about 150,000 pounds, of which about 10,000 will be boiler work, and the residue will be cast-iron and tension rods, bolts, &c.

The Board reserves the right to reject any proposal, or to refuse to receive any part of the work which may not be in strict conformity with the contract and specifications; and no contract will be considered binding until approved by the Hon. Secretary of the Treasury. No bid will be received or considered except from bona fide manufacturers, and each offer must be accompanied by a written guarantee, signed by the bidder and one competent surety, that in the event of the acceptance of such bid the necessary contract will be entered into.

Bond and security for the faithful fulfillment of the contract will be required.

The sum for which the bidder proposes to furnish the iron work, according to the drawings and specifications, must be distinctly stated, and a copy of the printed specifications must be enclosed with the bid as evidence that there is no mistake as to the object of his proposal.

All proposals must be sealed and endorsed "Proposals for Iron Work for Waugoshance Light-house," and then enclosed in another envelope and addressed to the Chairman of the Light-house Board, Washington, D. C.

No bid will be considered that does not conform to the requirements of this advertisement.

Any person submitting a proposal may be present and witness the opening of the bids at the time and place hereinbefore specified.

PITTSBURGH

LIGHTNING ROD WORKS.

MUNSON'S COPPER TUBULAR

LIGHTNING RODS.

With Spiral Flanges.

This Rod has the power to carry off as much electricity as twenty common iron rods; in other words is equal to a solid bar of iron thirty inches in circumference. It does not rust; it cannot get out of order. It has received the first premiums at very many State and District Fairs and Institutes. It was never beaten in any contest. It has been recommended by several hundred Professors in the best Schools and Colleges in the United States, as the best Rod ever invented. In this list we may name Philotus Dean, Professor of Natural Sciences, Pittsburgh High School; George Woods, President Western University of Pennsylvania, and I. C. Pershing, President Pittsburgh Female College.

Among the hundreds of buildings upon which this Rod was erected within the past year in this vicinity we may mention the Locomotive Works; Banner Cotton Mill; Allegheny Flouring Mills; First Presbyterian Church of Allegheny; Second Ward School House, Pittsburgh; City Poor House, Pittsburgh; St. Bridget's Church, Pittsburgh, &c., &c. In the surrounding country many of these Rods have been erected on residences or public buildings. It may be examined on the Lutheran Church at Johnstown; on the Disciples Church at New Castle; on Dr. Reed's residence Hickory; on residences of Esquire Jancey, Lawrenceville; E. M. Fulton, McKees Port; Wm. Ewing, Frankfort Springs; S. P. & J. N. Large, Elizabethtown; Col. Wm. Miller, Port Perry; P. Baker, Neville Island; J. Lockhart, Canonsburg; L. W. Lewis, Sharpsburg; J. F. Muller, Freedom; Friend Ruxton, Bakerstown, &c. &c. &c. This Rod is adopted by all who want lightning rods wherever it is introduced, and in an experience of ten years we have never known an instance of damage to a building protected by it, while many instances occur every year of damage to buildings upon which iron rods have been erected; so noticeable has this fact become in communities where attention is called to the subject, that we are almost daily called on to take down the iron rods and erect the Munson Copper Rod.

Price, 30 cents per foot and $3 for points on each rod. Our workmen will go to any part of the country without extra charge.

HOW DO YOU MAKE YOUR TEA?—This is a question often asked by one lady friend of another, as they partake of the pleasant beverage, many thinking their friend has a peculiar way of making tea that gives it the pleasant flavor. But after hearing all about it, they very often exclaim: "Why that is just the way I make tea, but yours is far better." Now, the true reason is in the original quality of the tea. Many persons think that when they have tasted Black tea once, or Green tea once, then they know all about tea; but they are about as near correct as if after seeing one yard of calico a person was to assert they knew all about calico; just so if a person is told the tea so much admired is Green tea, and they send to the store and get Green tea, they may get something that looks green, but being made to sell, no person could make a good cup of tea from a pound of it. The right plan for every one to pursue who wishes a good cup of tea is to purchase the tea only from a dealer in the article, who is a judge of tea, and who pays some attention to the wants of his customers. As I have been long connected with the tea trade, and having lately procured a large stock of all kinds, I am prepared to please every taste with tea. Some persons want a dark, strong tea, without regard to flavor. To such I sell my Black, at 60 cents per pound. Other want a clear tea, without regard to smell. To such I recommend my Young Hyson tea at $1.00, or Hyson Skin tea at $1.00, or Hyson Poko tea at $1.00. Others want finer flavored. To such I recommend my higher priced teas, of which I have a large assortment bought lately at very low prices, and which I am now selling at least 20 cents per pound below the usual prices. Some persons like a pleasant, clear, high flavored Green tea. To such I recommend my Young Hyson at $1.80 cents per pound. This is the same tea I have been selling at $2.00, and which has pleased so many. Others like a stronger, although not as pleasant, Green tea. To such I recommend my $1.60 tea, formerly sold at $1.80. So, also, of Black tea, of which I have a large assortment, each of which has its peculiar characteristics, but which I cannot now take time to describe.

Japan Tea.—This is comparatively a new tea. It is only a few years since it was first introduced into the United States. But such is the peculiar rich and pleasant flavor of this tea, that it has already become quite a favorite tea with almost every one who has used it. Although rapidly rising in price, as it becomes better known, it is still much cheaper than Green tea, which it very much resembles.

Mixed tea has become a great favorite with many persons, especially in large families or hotels and boarding houses, where a number of tastes have to be pleased at the same drawing. From my large assortment I am prepared to mix to suit any taste or price. My No. 1 mixed at $1.60 one-half best Black one-half best Young Hyson. No. 1 mixed at $1.50, one half second best Black, one-half best Young Hyson; No. 3 mixed at $1.20, one-third Black, one-third Young Hyson, one-third Japan.

Below may be found a list of prices of my most popular Teas: Black Teas, Powchong strong rank flavor, 60 cents per lb; Black Teas, Powchong, mild flavor, $1.00 per lb; Black Teas Souchong, mild flavor, $1.00 per lb; Black Teas, Oolong, mild, pleasant flavor, $1.00 per pound; Black Teas, Oolong, extra fine flavor, $1.20 per lb; Black Teas Oolong, best high color, smell and flavor, $1.40 per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, good, 90 cents per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, good, $1.00 per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, extra good, $1.10 per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, fine, $1.40 per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, extra fine, $1.60 per lb; Green Teas, Young Hyson, best clear high flavor, $1.80 per lb; Green Teas, Gunpowder, clear, high flavor, $1.80 per lb; Green Teas, Gunpowder, best clear, high flavor, $2.00 per lb; Green Teas, Imperial best clear, high flavor, $2.00 per lb; Japan Teas, uncolored Japan leaf, $1.20 per lb; Japan Teas, Young Hyson Japan leaf, $1.40 per lb. From the above any one can select just what kind of tea they want, and I have them put up in any quantity and forwarded by any of the Express Companies, who now carry goods at very low rates, and by doing so save TWENTY CENTS per pound in the price, besides getting a pure and clean article which exactly suits their taste.

The Muhlbach Novels.*

To discover and bring out a new novelist of genius is to confer a real benefit on mankind. It is a boon, as great in its way, as the discovery of a new metal or a new motive power. The Appletons deserve the credit of introducing the American public to an entirely new realm of fiction, wherein the enchanter's wand is wielded by a new hand. We allude to the brilliant series of novels by Miss Muhlbach, now in course of publication by their house. The writer is a German woman, living, we believe, in Berlin; and her novels are first published there, and translated here by practiced hands. Of herself we know nothing; but her intellectual powers are vividly revealed in the works under notice. She is a person of erudition, extensive and quite accurate, possessing an extraordinary imagination, a gift of making dialogue, which fits her well for a high order of dramas, if she cared to attempt them, a vein of wit which is French, and of humor which is English, besides a realistic style of description which belongs of right to the age of the photograph. The choice of her subjects exhibits her genius. She takes the time of Frederick the Great, and Joseph the Second, for example, and upon the background of facts which the chronicles of those periods afford, she embroiders the bright and sombre colors, the light and shade, of her fiction, with the skill of a consumate artist. In all history there cannot be found more picturesque scenes, more effective groupings, than Miss Muhlbach finds in the annals of the German, French, and Russian courts of the last century. The main facts are so well known as to impart to her stories the true historical air; and before proceeding far in them, we become satisfied that in her descriptions of persons, places, costumes, manners, and all that goes to make up the characteristic life of an epoch, she is conscientious and reliable. She also gains our confidence in her analysis of the motives of great personages—a most difficult task, one in which grave historians must often fail. As history, her works are truly valuable, containing not only all that could be gathered, worth knowing, from the heaviest of authors, but presenting it in a manner which makes its acquisition and retention by the memory a matter of real pleasure.

But it is as novels that Miss Muhlbach's books possess their highest charm. All this exhibition of historical lore is but the means to the end. Her object is to write stories which shall enthrall her readers, and she does it. Not for many years—some say, not since the Waverley novels—have such entertaining, such thoroughly readable books appeared. No dull chapters mar the progress of her narratives. Some historical novelists have thought it necessary to administer to the dignity of History, by mixing up quantities of dry statistics with their fictions. Miss Muhlbach skips chronologies, and the like rubbish, and gives us nothing of history which is not of itself interesting. Hence her novels are of a kind that one wishes there were more of them. We never tire of her heroes; her Frederick, for instance. He figures in various attitudes, in her "Frederick the Great and His Friends," "Joseph II. and His Court," and "Berlin and Sans-Souci;" yet when we have read them all, we are by no means cloyed with that particular historical dish, but ask for more of it. There can be no better evidence of the genius of a writer than this of portraying the same character in a series of books with historical consistency, and yet with undiminished interest. In Miss Mulbach's case we think the interest increases as we advance in the life and fortunes of her favorite Fritz. A part of the charm, when we pause to analyze it, is her style—perhaps the freest and most sparkling that ever ran from woman's pen. It has an individual quality, hard to define, like that which we see in some pictures; but it is unmarred by mannerisms or grotesqueries of any kind.

Amid the dearth of new romances of purely home production, these books come most acceptably. Our people seem to have stopped reading French novels, and English novels they complain of as insipid and dull. Miss Mulbach precisely supplies the public want.

* "Joseph the Second and His Court;" "The Merchant of Berlin;" "Frederick the Great and His Court;" "Berlin and Sans-Souci." By L. Mulbach. Each, $2. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York. Sent by mail, free, on receipt of the price.

Scientific.

Jacob Green, of Norristown, Penna., has invented a new and useful improvement in furnaces, consuming all the smoke and gas without chimneys. It economises sixty per cent. of fuel, is applicable to all kinds of furnaces for manufacturing purposes. The improvement consists in making furnaces adapted to the purposes required, with closed ash pits, in which is introduced a blast of air to support combustion, with jets of steam in close proximity to the grate bars; the oxygen of the steam combining with the carbon of the burning fuel forms carbonic acid, and in passing through a thick bed of burning fuel it receives another equivalent of carbon and is converted into carbonic oxyd; jets of air are forced into the furnace, over the fire amongst the products of combustion, the oxygen of which unites with the liberated hydrogen, carbonic oxyd and other inflammable gasses, producing a clean, intensely hot flame; the smoke is consumed and the sulphur in the fuel is rendered harmless previous to contact with the materials to be smelted or heated—an important item in the manufacture or working of iron, steel, copper, glass, &c. By Mr. Green's process of combustion and construction of furnaces, the heat and flame are confined in the furnace, increasing the heat without a corresponding increase of fuel. Nothing is permitted to escape but the incombustible gasses. Thus the furnace is completely filled with pressure heat, of any degree requisite, which is under perfect control in all kinds of weather, the quantity of oxygen and steam necessary for combustion being regulated by valves. This appears to be the most perfect mode of combustion and economy of fuel and heat yet discovered.

Iron can be made from ore with any kind of raw coal, and less than half the quantity used in ordinary furnaces, and of superior quality, at not over fifteen per cent. of the cost of constructing ordinary furnaces. The ore is desulphurized, deoxydized and carbonized before melting, the sulphur and gas in the coal are decomposed and consumed before contact with the materials to be melted.

Mr. Green is erecting a large window glass works, on his improved plan, at Norristown, Pa., for the Star Glass Company of Philadelphia, with four melting and one blowing furnace, flattening and pot ovens, &c., all supplied with air pressure from one four foot fan at six hundred revolutions per minute. The result of the application will be anxiously awaited.

THE "GANGS" OF RURAL ENGLAND.

The System of Gang Labor and its Immorality—The Children and their Overseers—An Official Inquiry.

[From the London Spectator, March 23.]

About fifty years ago, prices for corn being very high, the landowners of the districts of Lincolnshire, near Louth, began enclosing the Fen on a great scale. Cottages not paying, they did not build many, and the farmers gradually collected bands of children of both sexes, and set them to work under an overseer. The system was found profitable, particularly to owners of close parishes, who were thus enabled to pull down cottages and so completely abolish poor rates, and it gradually spread over other parts of the county, and then into parts of Huntingdonshire, Cambridgeshire, Norfolk, Suffolk and Nottinghamshire, till it became a regular trade. Men out of work, or without characters, or nomad by instinct, went about from village to village, hiring children at so much a week, and then reletting them out to the farmers at an advanced but still moderate rate, till at the present time it is believed that upwards of three hundred of these "public gangs" are in existence, each with its gang master and about twenty children of both sexes. The farmers, moreover, finding the supply of cheap and organized labor convenient, adopted the system for themselves, and organized private gangs among their own cottagers, till the total number of children thus employed amounted to several thousands more. Certain evils connected with the practice seem at last to have struck the local clergy. Parliament was induced to stir, and the Home Office order an official inquiry into the system. The report of the commissioner has been received and printed with the evidence, and the latter confirms the worst stories current. The gang system, as at present carried on in these counties, is declared by witnesses of all kinds and classes, clergymen, farmers, laborers, old gang-masters, mothers of girls who are in the gangs, and decent laborers' wives, to be fatal alike to health, to civilization, and to morality. Children of both sexes and all ages from five to sixteen, are, in fact, sold by the wretched laborers to the gang-masters at so much per head per week, generally, we are bound to add, out of the direst poverty. The ganger having collected his children, takes them away to his job, forcing them to walk, or if needful to carry each other, for distances which often involve of themselves great cruelty. Five miles out and five miles back is thought nothing of in addition to almost continuous labor for at least ten hours a day. This labor is generally weeding or picking stones, perhaps the most exhausting kinds of toil a child can be called on to perform. The laborers in many English parishes are coarse enough, but among these poor wretches civilization disappears. Upon this point there is an overwhelming consensus of evidence, even from the few farmers who pronounce that the system is indispensable to their tillage. The single amusement is obscene talk, which becomes so shocking that the very laborers are revolted, and declare they would sooner turn out of the road than meet the gangs returning. All the offices of nature, say twenty witnesses, are performed in public by both sexes, without the faintest effort at concealment. Boys and girls of all ages bathe together stark naked, and the most infamous actions are boasted of with a shamelessness rarely found among savages. The gangs are the special resort of all girls who have lost their characters, and the gang-masters often set themselves to deliberate corruption. One witness, a bookseller, who had belonged to one of these gangs, informed the commissioner distinctly that the gangers set the children to sing obscene songs to enliven the long road home, and it is clear, from all manner of incidental testimony, that the dinner hour is often the signal for horse play, which degenerates into deliberate obscenity. No doubt much of all this is due to an excessive coarseness of manners still uneradicated in many parts of the country, and, indeed, ineradicable until the English peasant has been rehoused, and it is quite possible to confuse a low civilization with a degenerated morality. But the universal testimony of the local witnesses is that the girls and boys employed in these gangs are much worse than their own brothers and sisters not so employed, that the evil is deepened by aggregation and, as we should add, by excessive toil. Gleaners going out are decent, but listen to them coming home. Women employed in the field are everywhere the worst on the country side, and if the laboring involves wandering and night work, as in the case of the hop pickers, civilization disappears, and whole farms become temporary brothels. But among these gangs the evil strikes society at the root. These gang laborers are children, forced to labor by their parents, deprived of the possibility of education, made lustful by forced companionship, brutal by compulsory association with brutes. Mothers, themselves bred among associations which at least kill squeamishness, repeat to the commissioners one unvarying song. "I would rather hunger," their strongest assertion, "than let my girls go to the field." For, be it remembered, the evil doth not pass with childhood. The gipsy taste is soon aroused and becomes one of the strongest of the passions. The girls who have been in the gang will rarely take to other work, never go into service, and when married leave their children at home drugged with opium to go out to the fresh, rough, "larky" labor of the fields, where there is "company," and beer, and paramours at discretion. If this account is considered too strong, all we can say is we have carefully toned it down from reports mainly guaranteed by local clergymen, who, like the Vicar of Chatteris, doubt whether any chastity is left among villagers where ganging is common; or, like the Rev. Mr. S. Jackson, assert "that the young women are utterly shameless—all female delicacy of character is utterly gone;" or, like the Rector of Bramhall, who is magistrate, testifies that cases of indecent assaults are unfrequent in his district, because "little is thought of such behaviour, and it is passed over unnoticed;" or, like Mr. George Moore Smith, who holds gang labor to be absolutely indispensable, but is so convinced of the immorality of the system that he would prohibit mixed gangs by law.

COURT REPORTS.

Oyer and Terminer, &c.

Before Hon. James P. Sterrett.

This Court met at ten o'clock Monday morning and proceeded with the LUTZ BARRATRY CASE.

John Lutz, a deputized Constable, was arraigned on Friday last on an indictment charging him with barratry, in other words that he was a "common barrator" in having incited unjust and vexatious suits against a number of persons. The evidence in the case, as far as elicited, has appeared in the GAZETTE.

Gen. Collier opened the case on behalf of the defense. He defined the legal meaning of barratry, dwelling upon the requirement that before a conviction could be had the Commonwealth must prove affirmatively that three or more unjust and vexatious suits had been brought by the defendant. The act of selling liquor on Sunday was unlawful, punishable by a civil penalty and also by fine and imprisonment. The civil penalty, fifty dollars, the law directed to be divided, the informer to get one half, and the remainder to be paid over to the Guardians of the Poor. The suits brought by the defendant being for the violation of the law referred to, and it not having been shown that any one of them was unjust or vexatious, he (Gen. Collier) submitted whether they should be required to go into a defense.

The Court said it did not appear that any of the suits before Alderman Donaldson were brought for the penalty, fifty dollars, although the penalty was paid. Could a suit be said to be just where the settlement of it was improper? Suits may be unjust in their proceeding as well as conception.

Gen. Collier said the defendant was being tried for barratry, and could not be held responsible for other matters in the consideration of the present case. The counsel pressed his claim that the Commonwealth had not proven their case affirmatively, and that the burden of proof as to the unjustness of the suits could not be thrown upon the defense.

Judge Sterrett thought there was some evidence adduced bearing upon the allegation that the suits were unjust, which was a question of fact for the consideration of the jury.

George Fortune, Esq., Secretary and Agent for the Guardians of the Poor, was called, and asked how much money he had received from Alderman Donaldson as the moiety of fines received for violations of the Sunday liquor law?

Mr. Swartzwelder objected, unless the witness could state in what particular cases he had received money. The Court sustained the objection—the gross amount he had received would not prove that a cent had been paid over in the particular cases in controversy.

Benjamin W. Morgan was called and testified that he was present at a hearing before Alderman Nicholson, when William Einstein swore that when he paid money to Lutz in Alderman Donaldson's "little back room" no one was present. [Einstein testified on Friday that others were present.]

Alderman Donaldson was recalled and permitted to make an explanation in the case of Wm. B. Jones, who had been prosecuted before him by John Lutz and Hamlet Lowe, testifying that he had nothing to do with the settlement of the case in which the latter (Lowe) was prosecutor. Jones paid Lowe the money, stating that he would rather pay the amount required and get rid of the matter. The Alderman further testified that he never told any person prosecuted before him that when the time for hearing came he would "keep the witnesses away." The Alderman further explained, negativing the idea that he had received money for Lutz in the manner referred to by witnesses for the commonwealth.

Brown Dawson was, as stated, an important witness for the defense, and having failed to attend, after being subpœnaed, an attachment was issued for him. The officer who went in search reported that he had been unable to find him, or ascertain his whereabouts.

Officer John Sarber was called, but also did not answer.

The evidence in the case having been closed, A. G. Cochran, Esq., began the argument to the jury. Barratry was one of the most serious crimes with which a person could be charged, and the evidence in the case presented a most vivid exhibition of the cupidity of the defendant. The "little back room" in Alderman Donaldson's office reminded the speaker of the school boy story about the spider and the fly. From the facts it appeared, however, that there were two spiders engaged in coaxing victims into the "little back" parlor. Parties were prosecuted and the cases were settled, the Alderman conceiving that under an act of assembly he had a right to discharge the parties upon paying a fine of fifty dollars and the costs. No docket entries were made, that not being considered necessary. Mr. Cochran went over the evidence seriatim, commenting upon each particular instance of the receipt of money by Lutz and the Alderman. There were four cases in which Lutz was the prosecutor and in which Lutz received money. The names of the parties prosecuted were William Berger, George Schmidt, William Einstein and George Gossenschmidt. They were discharged, said the Alderman, because there were no witnesses against them, consequently they were innocent and John Lutz was a common barrator.

Gen. Collier said the older he got the more he believed there were two sides to every case. In this case the defense had a side. The jury were to decide whether the defendant was guilty of the particular offense with which he was charged. It was to be decided whether the suits brought were unjust, vexatious he had no doubt they were. The act of Assembly defined barratry to be the bringing of unjust and vexatious suits. John Lutz was a mere puppet in the case. The great question was whether the European custom of selling liquor on Sunday was to be Americanized, and this case was but the commencement of the movement in that direction. The unjustness of the suits was a question of fact for the jury. Under the law every person who sells liquor on Sunday is to be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and is subject to both a civil and criminal proceeding, the informer, in the civil process, being entitled to one-half the penalty. In the cases referred to informations had been made, and if they were settled improperly, as alleged, not only Lutz but the parties prosecuted were equally culpable; but did this make the suits unjust? Would the persons accused have been willing to settle it they were innocent? Vexatious the suits were, to men who will sell liquor on Sunday in defiance of law. There was no evidence in the case to justify the jury in saying that the suits were unjust, and whatever else the defendant might be guilty of, with others, it was not barratry, as charged. This offense not having been made out within the meaning of the law, there could be no conviction. In the cases relied upon, in which the parties prosecuted had paid money to Lutz, it was not pretended that they did not sell liquor on Sunday; they did not dare to say that they did not sell. He (the counsel) was not permitted to ask the question. The arrangement was, they were to come into court, swear that they were discharged, and therefore it was to be claimed that they were innocent, the suits unjust, and thus to convict defendant of barratry. A new way, decidedly, of proving that charge. When a man is outraged by an unjust charge, how swift he is to proclaim his innocence and demand redress for his wrongs. How remarkable the difference in the present case! Was the reason not obvious! Let the rule prevail, that a man's discharge before an Alderman, as in this case, is evidence of the unjustness of the charge against him, and then farewell henceforth to prosecutions for selling liquor on Sunday. Our peaceful Sabbaths will be so no more. Gen. Collier, in conclusion, again referred to the point he made in the case, viz: that the suit itself must be unjust, any unjustness in the carrying on of the suit having nothing to do with the question as to the charge of barratry. The parties agreeing to settle, and the settling of the suits, did not make them unjust. The settling was in reality to prevent vexation, as should the cases be brought to court, in addition to payment of another fine, they would be required to go to jail for at least ten days.

Mr. Swartzwelder next addressed the jury. The question involved was not one of constitutional liberty, or as to whether the Sabbath was to be Americanized or Europeanized—unquestionably it was not a question as to whether John Lutz was to be the instrument by which the Sabbath was to be properly observed. The gentleman (Mr. Collier) in defining his position, was forced to characterize him as a "miserable being." John Lutz making informations to compel Sabbath observance was a proposition which would only excite a loud guffaw! Mr. S. went into an extended definition or description of the character of a barrator, giving not only the legal definition, but reading from books dissertations on the subject. Referring to the evidence, Mr. S. remarked that the manner of the disposition of the suits had been fully detailed by His Honor, Justice Donaldson. The proceeding under the Act of Assembly, by which the Justice claimed to have acted, prescribed an entirely different course of proceeding than that which he had pursued. In his administration of justice he was assisted by John Lutz, who made the informations from information received. Parties were arrested, and (leaving out of view what part the Alderman may have taken, he not being on trial,) Lutz, after obtaining money from them "in the little back room," permitted them to go, the Alderman discharging them, for the reason that there were no witnesses, or for some reason, at all events they were discharged, of which, however, there was no record. It was said the civil penalty was paid; there was no summons issued, but a warrant, on the information; in other words, a warrant was issued to compel a man to pay a debt, the legal existence of which had not been established, and upon the payment of which he was released. The proceeding was unjust from the beginning, and being so, the argument of the defense fell to the ground. That the collection of money, or penalties forfeited, in the manner developed, was vexatious, as well as unjust, no one could question, and all had been for the purpose, forsooth, of enforcing the observance of the holy Sabbath, and to prevent it being Europeanized, the humble instrument John Lutz. The case, thought Mr. S., was too plain for elaborate argument, and he closed his address by briefly recounting the doings of Jonathan Wild as parallel in a degree with those of the prosecutor John Lutz. Wild, having passed through the entire catalogue of crime, was apprehended for murder and sentenced to be hung, but escaped through some technicality. Subsequently he became a deputized policeman, continued his nefarious practices, but was finally detected and executed. The parallel was somewhat similar, said Mr. S., but although the verdict of the jury would not consign Lutz to a similar fate, it might perhaps for a year or a few months restrain him from extorting money to preserve the sanctity of the Sabbath day.

Judge Sterrett charged the jury that if the defendant did, as claimed by the Commonwealth, institute suits against three or more parties, and pursued them only so far as to place the accused in a position to extort money from them, such a proceeding was "unjust and vexatious," and defendant should be convicted under the indictment. Lutz, however, should not be held responsible for the "irregularity" of the Alderman. His Honor thought it hardly necessary to state that the Alderman was mistaken in supposing his proceedings to have been regular. So far as appeared the suits before him were by information (criminal), an entirely distinct proceeding from that directed by law for the recovery of the civil penalty. It was his duty to return them to Court. If civil suits had been brought for the penalty, he had a right to receive the fine, after a hearing, and judgment in a regular way.

The jury retired at 2:15 and at 2:55 returned with a verdict of "guilty."

STEALING NEWSPAPER FILES.

Ovid Rigby and Alexander Bayne were indicted for the larceny of newspaper files from the GAZETTE Building, the property of the proprietors of the GAZETTE. The files were alleged to have been taken from the fourth story of the building in a back room, and a portion of them were concealed in the yard in the rear of the premises, whence the defendants were observed in the act of taking them away or placing them in a bag preparatory to selling. On trial at adjournment.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, }
MONDAY, April 8, 1867. }

The New York stock quotations to-day, as received by Mr. P. R. Mertz, were as follows: Gold, 135¼; Eighty-one bonds, 109; Five Twenties, old, 109⅝; do, '65, 108; do, new, 107¼; Seven Thirties, 105¼. Michigan Southern Railroad, 71; Cleveland and Pittsburgh, 73; Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, 92¼; Erie, 55¾; Chicago and Rock Island, 89; Chicago and Northwestern, 33½ do preferred, 62¼; New York Central, 100⅞, Reading, 101¼.

Gold oped at 134, declined to 133¾, and under the influence of cable dispatches from Paris and London, advanced to 136; it afterwards declined to 134¾, and at 4 p. m. it closed at 135¼. The sudden rise is due to the action of timid parties who were largely "short" at Saturday's quotations. Government bonds continue firm, with the exception of old Five Twenties, which declined ¼. Railway stocks are a shade lower but firm.

—The National Mechanics' Bank of Baltimore, which has for the past month been the subject of investigation, has been enabled to report to its stockholders an unimpaired capital of $400,000, and is thus saved from the necessity of liquidation at the hands of a receiver. At a stockholders' meeting on the 28th of March, by a more than two-thirds vote, the capital was reduced to $400,000, and by a corresponding vote immediately increased to $600,000, the original amount.

—Business prospects at Boston are unusually favorable, and the spring trade, particularly in dry goods, and boots and shoes, opens with excellent prospects. The shipments of boots and shoes by rail for the past two weeks amount to 200,000 or 300,000 cases, and the dry goods sales to the South and West have been unexpectedly large. The new buildings of this summer will be numerous and of good quality.

—The copper mining companies in the United States number one hundred and eleven, and $14,555,500 has been paid into their coffers by sanguine owners of shares. Only eight of the companies have ever paid dividends; the aggregate of these, up to the 1st instant, being $9,830,000. But they have been a quarter of a century about it. Of these companies, fifty-one have their location in Boston, of which three have paid dividends; thirty-six in New York, of which three have paid dividends; nine in Pittsburgh, of which two have paid dividends; fourteen in Philadelphia, of which none have paid dividends; and one in Chicago, which, in the matter of dividends, is as barren as Philadelphia.

—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says "The Sprague purchase at Augusta was consummated on Saturday. The final transfer of the water power and other property has been made, and the entire amount paid for the property is about $555,000. Of this amount the city assumes $250,000, payable mostly in six per cent municipal bonds, running twenty years. It is expected that the Spragues will commence operations immediately."

—At Chicago increased monetary ease was experienced immediately after the completion of the quarterly statements of national banks, and first-class borrowers had no difficulty in negotiating loans on undoubted collaterals at the usual bank rate. Exchange on New York is firm at par buying, and 1-10 premium selling. At Cincinnati exchange on the east is in good request, but bankers there have been so closely pinched for currency that they have made it a point to keep their New York balances low. The rates are the same as at Chicago. The money market was active on and just prior to the 1st of April, in consequence of the preparations of the national banks to make their quarterly returns favorable. From 12 to 15 per cent. has been paid for discounts, but increased ease is now anticipated.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, }
MONDAY, April 8, 1867. }

The general markets were moderately active to-day, the operations in most of the leading commodities being on a liberal scale, but with the exception of Flour, there was no apparent excitement. The resumption of business by our rolling mills would infuse new life and energy into the trade of Pittsburgh, but the indications at present for such a desirable event, are by no meant encouraging, both parties being determined to make the other come to terms.

FLOUR—The market was again somewhat excited and prices are tending upward. We now quote at $14 to $14,50 for Spring Wheat; $15 to $16 for Winter Wheat, and $17 to $18 for fancy brands. Sale of 100 bbls "Crossett," to arrive, at $14; 100 do, brand not named, at $14,10; 100 do do, common, at $13 25; 40 bbls "Clipper" at $15,25; 50 do "City Mills Springfield" at $15,50, and 100 bbls Spring Wheat, in lots, at $13.50 to $14,25. Rye Flour is quoted at $8,25 to $8,50.

GRAIN—No transactions in Wheat, and no established quotations. Corn is in demand, and prime Yellow is higher, being held at $1, with offers to buy at 90, and possibly 95 could be obtained. Oats firm but unchanged; may be quoted at 56 to 57, on track, and 60, in store. Rye is in demand at $1,45, and but little offering. Prime Spring Barley is wanted, and sells readily at $1,15.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is steady with a regular jobbing demand at 10c to 10½c for Shoulders; 11½c to 12c for Ribbed Sides; 15½c to 16c for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is selling at 13c to 13½c, and Mess Pork $23½.

SEEDS—Cloverseed is selling in small lots at $11,50 to $12, while Timothy is quiet and unchanged at $3 to $3,25. Flaxseed is wanted, though crushers, we believe, refuse to pay above $2,85.

BUTTER—Is steady and prime Roll is selling at 35c to 40c. Common Butter is in good supply and dull.

EGGS—Steady with a demand equal to the supply, and we can report regular sales at 22c to 23c—mostly at 23c.

POTATOES—Sale of 1 car Peach Blows at 85c—small sales at 90c to 95c per bushel, and $3,25 per bbl.

GREEN APPLES—Firm, and prime qualities in good condition, are selling at $5 to $5,50, and choice, $6.

HAY—Prime Timothy is in fair demand, while common Hay is dull; we quote the former at $24 to $25.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, }
MONDAY, April 8, 1867. }

CRUDE—The market for Crude was more active to-day, the reported sales reaching over sixteen thousand barrels, in the aggregate, but prices are a shade lower, say from ¼ to ½, compared with the rates prevailing during the latter part of last week. We can report sales of 1000 bbls (40 to 44 gravity) at 6½; 5000 to arrive, on this water, at 6¾; 4500 for all this month, seller's option, at 6¾; 158, on spot, bbls returned, at 6¾; 112 do do at 6½; 1700 do do at 6¼, and 5000 for future delivery, on private terms. Advices from Oil City, under date of Saturday, reported the market very dull and drooping—quotations, $2,10 to $2,20. Eastern advices dull and unimportant.

REFINED—The market for bonded oil was very quiet to-day, there being but two sales reported: 1000 bbls standard white, to be put on cars at works, at 21¼, and 1000 for June delivery, on private terms. Compared with last week, prices have undergone no change, and we would have plenty of sales to report if refiners were willing to sell at current figures. Prime light straw to white may be quoted at 25½ to 26, delivered in Philadelphia, and 27 to 27½ for standard white—sales on Saturday at 28½ for May and June. Free oil is quiet and unchanged.

RIVER NEWS.

The river continues to recede slowly at this point with eleven and a half feet in the channel by the Allegheny marks last evening. At Oil City the telegraph reported six and half feet and falling. The weather yesterday was pleasant, though stormy at times and threatening rain.

The Uriba got in from Oil City yesterday afternoon, with a goodly number of passengers, but a slim freight list. The Ida Rees No. 2 cleared for that point last evening.

The Armenia, from St. Louis, was due here last night, and will doubtless be found in port this morning. Her cargo, we understand, consists mainly of iron ore, of which she has some six hundred tons.

The Charley Bowen was sold at auction on last Saturday to Mr. A. Watson, of the firm of Watson & Munroe, boiler makers, for $2,025. Mr. Watson will doubtless build a new boat for her machinery. The Bowen belonged to Thayer & Noyes' Circus Company, and was sold, we presume, for want of use. She has been laid up here since last summer.

The Maggie Hays, with an excellent trip, arrived from Cincinnati early yesterday forenoon. Among other items of freight she has over seventeen hundred sacks of wheat for Kennedy & Bro., of the "Pearl Mill."

The Silver Lake has undergone considerable repairs and overhauling, and is now in excellent condition for business. As will be seen by card, Captain Todd proposes to leave for the gold regions on Thursday, and persons going in that direction, have here an excellent opportunity presented.

The Glendale, Capt. Hare, and the Lorena, Capt. Shuman, both excellent boats, are announced for St. Louis. The Ida Rees, Capt. Joe Brown, is now in turn for Cincinnati and Louisville, and the Leonora No. 2, Capt. Davis, is up for Nashville.

Dubuque, Capt. Parker, leaves for the Upper Mississippi to-day without fail. The Dubuque is a bran new boat, built expressly for the Northern Line Packet Company, and in point of style and finish, as well as elegance, safety and comfort, she has no superiors, and but few equals on the Western waters. She was built under the immediate superintendance of Capt. R. C. Gray, who, as is well known, is no novice at the business.

The Ezra Porter was advertised to leave Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Monday, and the Argosy is due here from Cincinnati today, and will return as usual on Wednesday at noon.

The towboat I. N. Phillips arrived at Nashville on Thursday last. Among other items of freight, she had a locomotive and railroad iron for the Upper Cumberland Coal Mines.

Capt. Dryden telegraphs from Jeffersonville, under date of Saturday, as follows: "The towboat A. J. Baker and barges of coal, are still on the falls. She can get no relief until the river rises."

A St. Louis telegram, under date of Saturday, says: The Evening Star is coming from Nebraska City, with considerable corn. Grain from the Missouri above St. Joseph is expected here in large quantities this year. The Minnesota and barge, from Minnesota, arrived here this morning with a good trip; she reports only three feet on the rapids. The Cora, Deer Lodge and other steamers leave here to-day for the mountains. Receipts of freight to that section are tending downward. The shipments to New Orleans continue light; tunnage is in excess. The Abeona went last night to help the Amaranth, aground in the mouth of the Missouri.

A correspondent says that the Tennessee river has been out of its banks, and all over the country. It was five feet higher than ever known before. The loss of property has been very great. Horses and stock were swept off in many places, and all along the river the wood that was corded on the banks, has been carried off, which makes it very difficult for boats to get fuel.

The St. Louis Democrat says: A whisper is heard of cutting under in rates to the mountains; of a boat having agreed to take a load at six cents per pound; a rumor that the rates to posts on the Upper Missouri under the government contract, believed by some to have been awarded at Washington to Wm. M. McPherson, of this city, averaging less than five cents per pound; and there is a number of boatmen whose opinion is entitled to consideration, who aver that even nine or ten cents per pound is not enough. Some of our most experienced mountain boatmen predict low water in the Upper Missouri this year. At all events, about a dozen steamers are hourly receiving freight shipments for Fort Benton and the mines.

The Louisville Journal has a three column description of the steamer Richmond. It will not be a hard task for this boat to lose money. The more she runs the more she'll lose. But then she's pretty and fast, and those qualities please the Louisville people.

Last trip the Lee brought to New Orleans 2907 bales of cotton, quite a large trip considering the scarcity of the fleecy article.

The Louisville Courier says that the cost of the Richmond, all complete, exceeds $300,000, the machinery alone being valued at $130,000, which is barely one-third of the full value of the boat.

The canal at Louisville has again been called into use for the passage of boats, that channel having been closed longer by high water than was ever before known. As a natural consequence, it is almost wholly blocked with mud, but light draught boats readily work their way through, and, in the meantime, the canal company are dredging it out.

The case of the steamer Wm. Bagley and cargo, captured in 1863 and condemned and sold in New Orleans in 1864, and the money, some $218,000 paid into the registry of court, was argued in the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington on last Thursday. It comes up by appeal from the Eastern District of New Albany, Ind. The vessel and cargo, at the beginning of the rebellion, belonged to Cox, Brainard & Co., of which firm Capt. Bragdon was a member, owning one-sixteenth. He, however, remained loyal, and his property in Mobile was confiscated by the rebels. The remainder of the firm remained in Mobile and ran the vessel and cargo through the blockade and was captured near Havana. The case was submitted the other day.

The towboats Lake Erie, Tigress and Wild Duck were at Evansville on Saturday.

A boat has arrived at Cincinnati from New Orleans with twelve camels, who had their "backs up" the entire trip.
